

Working with people who are mentally ill and chemically addicted and who have experienced trauma offers a myriad of complexities. This training also offers strategies in how to respond as a practitioner when working with people who have experienced varying degrees of trauma.